

SILK TEXTILE WORKERS MAY WALK OUT TOO

Leader of Strike Insists Communists Will Be Barred

BULLETIN

Washington, Aug. 31.—(AP)—A general strike of the nation's cotton mill workers today was extended to include the woolen and worsted industries.

The actual order has yet to be sent but Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the strike committee of the United Textile Workers, said the walk-out of woolen workers would be identical with that in the cotton industry, set for 11:30 P. M., tomorrow night.

Gorman's announcement followed the refusal in New York of Arthur Besse, chairman of the wool code authority, to arrange a conference between union leaders and representatives of the woolen industry.

Washington, Aug. 31.—(AP)—A fresh hint that the nation's silk workers might be called out on strike with those of the cotton textile industry was given today by Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the United Textile Workers strike committee.

The strike committee had asked for conferences with employees in the silk and woolen industries.

The order which called for cotton textile workers to begin their strike tomorrow night, instructed silk, woolen, rayon and synthetic yarn workers to stand by.

Gorman expected word today from Peter van Horn, chairman of the silk code authority, and the silk strike apparently hinged on the result of that conversation.

Asked if the United Textile Workers would accept an offer of cooperation with the National Textile Workers Union, Gorman said: "We are not interested."

"This strike will be conducted under the principles of the United States government," he added. "No Communist element will get into it."

Members of the executive council and the strike committee will leave for the field tonight so that all regional headquarters may be manned for strike operations.

John H. Powers will go to Worcester, Mass.; Abraham Binns will go to New Bedford and Fall River, Mass.; G. W. Watson to Salisbury, N. C.; and Emil Rieve to Pennsylvania.

The strike committee made public details of organization for the strike "so that there may be discipline and restraint in the fact of provocation."

Every local union has been ordered to form in squads of ten, each squad under a captain.

"Our purpose in ordering organization by squads," Gorman explained, "is to bring about the highest possible degree of organized responsibility. We know perfectly well the tactics that will be tried by reactionary mill owners, clinging to the old ways. We want to have some designated person responsible for the conduct of every member of our organization."

Gorman plans to go to Charlotte, N. C., Sunday to confer with southern leaders, returning here at once to direct the national walk-out.

The strike committee said conditions were entirely satisfactory as far as strike organization was concerned at Lewiston, Me., despite denunciation of the walk-out order by the mayor of that city.

The strike committee also emphasized that the order sent yesterday included not only cotton textile workers but all workers employed under the cotton textile code.

British Interested

Interest of British mill workers in the American strike was shown today when Gorman received telephone calls from newspapers in England. Gorman himself was born in Bradford, Yorkshire, in 1903, coming to the United States at the age of 13. Through the English press he sent regards and good wishes from mill workers of America to Arthur Shaw, head of the Textile Workers of England, and members of his organization.

Meanwhile spokesmen for the relief administration said protests against its policy regarding strikers seemed due principally to "misunderstanding."

Harry L. Hopkins, the relief administrator, has said in the last few days that his organization would take care of needy strikers unless the national labor relations board or the labor department decided their strike was unjustified.

He said these agencies so far had classified no strike as unjust.

Strike News of Today Condensed for Quick Reading

(By The Associated Press.)

The nation's greatest labor conflict—under NRA—the general strike in the cotton textile industry—will face its first test on Labor Day.

Textile mills of the south uniformly do not observe the Labor Day holiday and operators have served notice that plants will open Monday as usual despite the calling of the nationwide walkout for 11:30 o'clock Saturday night after the last shift of the week goes off duty.

From many sections union organizers report that the strike will be "100 per cent effective." From other mill operators claim less than 10 per cent of their employees will answer the strike call.

In some Carolina mills workers voted to report for work Monday morning while in other parts of the south workers have already left their spindles.

Violence has echoed the strike call. Employees of the Payne mill in Macon, Ga., struck yesterday and before midnight two officials of the plant had been threatened and five persons arrested. Pickets, armed with clubs, marched outside the mill fence; company guards, carrying firearms, patrolled inside the gate.

An estimated 425,000 workers in the cotton textile trade will be affected by the general strike. Another 200,000 employees in affiliated fields such as silk, rayon, and wool have orders to "stand by," Francis J. Gorman, strike committee chairman, predicts they will join the walkout.

TWO FISHERMEN FROM ILLINOIS SAVED BY WOMAN

Rescuer, Driving Car Along Lake, Saw Men Drowning

Sanford, Ont., Aug. 31.—(AP)—Two men tonight owed their lives to the heroism of a woman they had never seen before.

Dr. F. Hopkins and George Bradshaw, who came from Illinois for a vacation at Pudas Lake, were cast from a canoe Wednesday afternoon. There was a stiff wind and the water was choppy. One of the fishermen had a strike and the doctor and his companion tried to change positions in order to throw the fish better. The canoe capsized.

Bradshaw went down. Dr. Hopkins swam to his rescue and brought him to the surface. There was a breeze carried the canoe out of the doctor's reach. Bradshaw became unconscious and the doctor was unable to make shore.

Seen By Woman

Miss C. Folcard of Picton, Ont., employee of the Ontario Mothers' Aids Commission, driving along the shore road in her automobile, saw the two men in the water.

Miss Folcard stopped the car and ran to the water's edge where a rocky outcrop was moored. It was a broken oar. She jumped into the punt and swung the oar as a paddle.

Dr. Hopkins by this time was too weak to do more than hold Bradshaw's head above the water. Miss Folcard was unable to get them into the punt, so she tore off her stockings and a scarf, improvised a low rope and dragged the men ashore.

She built a fire of driftwood and went to work at artificial respiration on Bradshaw. Soon Dr. Hopkins had sufficiently recovered to assist her, and together they revived Bradshaw.

Statement of Woman Waiting Execution in California, May Help Solve Murder of Dentist Last Dec.

A Convicted Mariticide Makes Alleged Revelations

Los Angeles, Aug. 31.—(AP)—A fantastic solution for one of California's most mystifying murders came today from the lips of a woman sentenced to die.

Blayne Matthews, special investigator for the district attorney, reported Mrs. Nellie Madison told him her husband killed Dr. Leonard Siever, Pasadena society dentist, in a fight over another woman.

The former Montana cowgirl, Matthews related, said that shortly before his death her husband confessed he shot Dr. Siever. It was for the fatal shooting of her husband, Eric D. Madison, that the crack pistol shot was sentenced to be hanged.

Linked Woman With Case

The investigator said Mrs. Madison implicated a Los Angeles woman in the fight leading to the dentist's death. A woman to whom Madison gave a costly wrist watch was supposedly one of the many linked with the socially prominent Pasadena's life.

This was the watch, Mrs. Madison said, which was taken from Dr. Siever's wrist when he was shot down last December 12 near the Scottish Rite Cathedral and figured so prominently in subsequent investigations. The watch was mailed to Mrs. Francis Coen-Cooke, a wealthy Pasadena divorcee, who was a central figure in the murder investigation, with a demand for $5,000.

Tale Sounds Fantastic

Mrs. Madison's weird story was reportedly told at Tehachapi prison where she is awaiting execution for the murder of her husband in his Burbank, Calif., apartment last March 24.

Authorities agreed her story sounded fantastic, but said they knew her husband often had registered at Pasadena hotels. Every angle of her statement is being investigated, Matthews said.

"When you are in my position," he quoted the condemned woman as saying, "one hasn't much to gain or lose in anything they say."

Dr. Siever's death has been listed in southern California police records as an unsolved crime.

ALIEN RUSSIAN RUINED IRONIC NEW DEAL MURAL

Threw Flaming Acid on Caricatures of Roosevelt

Tarrytown, N. Y., Aug. 31.—(AP)—A young unnaturalized Russian was arrested today after he had ruined with flaming acid the ironic mural of the New Deal, hung here in the exhibit of the Westchester Institute of Fine Arts.

The man gave his name as John Thompson, 25, the Bronx. He said his only reason for attacking the lampoon painting, "Nightmare of 1934," was to efface the portion which caricatured Mrs. Roosevelt. He was held on a charge of malicious mischief.

The picture was burned by naphtha flames in three places and will not be rehung, it was announced.

"I did not like the idea of holding up the Roosevelt family to ridicule," Thompson said at police headquarters.

Taken before Justice of the Peace, W. A. Ely, Thompson was sentenced to six months in Westchester penitentiary.

He admitted being in this country illegally. He said his real name is Smirnov and that he jumped ship at New York nine years ago.

LOCAL POLICE RECONCILED A HIKING COUPLE

Ohio Man and Bride of Few Months End Quarrels Here

G. H. McCartney, 32, of Mansfield, Ohio, appealed to the Dixon police yesterday afternoon to assist him in locating his 18-year-old bride of only a few months. The couple were hitch-hiking from Mansfield to Los Angeles, Cal., the husband told the police, and near Nachusa while walking along the Lincoln Highway, a west bound truck stopped to give them a lift. According to his story, his wife rode in the cab between the driver and a companion, while he rode on top of the truck load of empty chicken crates.

West of Sterling near McCune's corner, he left the truck and his story to the police was to the effect that he then noticed that his wife had been drinking. Later, he observed a sedan from the west, his wife riding with the driver, traveling toward Sterling. He proceeded to the state police headquarters where he reported the incident and then came to Dixon to look for his companion. He insisted that the police aid him in the search.

When the officers arrived they forced entrance through the door and found the small two-room house filled with gas fumes. Mr. Harahan apparently had caught some of his clothing one of the jets as he undressed for bed, turning on the gas, with the result that he was asphyxiated as he slept. No notes were found which would indicate that he had suicided.

Inquest Held Today

The body was removed to the Jones funeral home where Coroner Frank M. Banker conducted an inquest at 10 o'clock this morning. The jury returning a verdict of death due to asphyxiation. Mr. Eggericks and the two police officers testified at the inquest.

The deceased had been a resident of Dixon for the past 45 years. For a number of years he was janitor on the old Dixon college buildings and he was a well known character about the city. For several years he had lived alone in the two room house in the west end of the city where he gardened. He is survived by his wife and four daughters, all of whom are residents of Chicago. Members of his family were notified of his tragic passing this morning and were expected to come to Dixon today to take charge of the body.

Mr. Harahan was of a pleasant disposition and was very active for a man of his advanced age.

Tokyo, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Representations against a proposed agreement were sent to Washington today by the Japanese government, and were interpreted as the start of a "Trans-Pacific trade war."

The protests claimed the pending agreement between Manila and the United States, which would allow tariff increases on imports into the islands, would discriminate against Tokyo's trade in the Philippines.

AGED DIXON MAN ASPHYXIATED BY GAS LAST NIGHT

Michael Hanrahan, 92, is Found Dead in Bed This Morning

Michael Hanrahan, 92-year-old resident of this city, was found dead in bed at 7 o'clock this morning at his home, 1401 River street, where he had lived alone for a number of years. Death was the result of gas asphyxiation and the condition of the body indicated that he had been dead for several hours.

Harvey Eggericks, janitor at the Tuman school, went to the Hanrahan home to purchase plums, and when he received no response to his knock at the door, peered through a window and saw the body of the aged man in bed, apparently dead. Mr. Eggericks detected the odor of gas and observed one burner of the small gas stove in the room was open. He notified neighbors and Officers Jones and Glessner were summoned.

When the officers arrived they forced entrance through the door and found the small two-room house filled with gas fumes. Mr. Hanrahan apparently had caught some of his clothing one of the jets as he undressed for bed, turning on the gas, with the result that he was asphyxiated as he slept. NATION JOINED
IN SAFETY MOVE

Big Reduction in Auto Casualties in September is Urged

New York, Aug. 31—(AP)—Forty-four states of the union and the District of Columbia joined today to make September a model month in traffic safety regulation.

Governors of the states and the board of commissioners of the District of Columbia have issued proclamations calling on citizens and officials to make September a demonstration month of the safe use of highways.

The only states not included are Maine, Louisiana, Kentucky and Oklahoma. Commerce Secretary Daniel Roper in his capacity as chairman of the national conference on street and highway safety, declared that every effort must be put forth this September to reduce the country's loss of life, pointing out that a large proportion of it can be avoided.

—Calls Action Timely President Roosevelt has declared that the action of the governors is timely since the period of the year in which the heaviest loss of life occurs is now beginning.

The president declared that the country must attack the problem continuously and energetically and through a coordinated national effort.

The population of the 44 states concerned in the program is 94 per cent of that of the entire country. In these states are registered 95 per cent of the country's automobiles and in them last year occurred 29,000 deaths from automobiles, nearly 95 per cent of the total for the nation.

—Death Rate Higher Based on past experience it is estimated that the nation's accident casualty list for this year will be 36,000 and more than a million injured. The record to date is 20 per cent higher than for last year and the closing months of the year in the past have always increased the percentage.

Thus far this year, fewer than half a dozen states have had decreases in accident deaths, while many states have shown increases as high as fifty per cent.

—DERN REFUSES TO FIRE CHIEF ARMY AIR CORPS Secretary Says General Foulis Failed to Get Hearing

Washington, Aug. 31—(AP)—A new inquiry into the Army Air Corps is expected to result from Secretary Dern's refusal to discharge Major General Benjamin G. Foulis forthwith from his post as chief of the corps.

A demand by a house military affairs subcommittee that Foulis be dismissed summarily was turned down yesterday by the War Secretary on the ground that the general had not been granted "sacred rights of American citizenship" guaranteed by the Constitution.

Dern declined to act until the committee reopens the case and gives Foulis a "full and complete hearing."

The committee had charged Foulis broke the law by approving the buying of planes by negotiating contracts instead of competitive bidding.

An attempt to tighten the purse strings also may follow Dern's decision. After attacking Foulis as a weak spot in the air corps, the subcommittee had hinted the War Department might have difficulty in obtaining larger appropriations if he were not removed.

Schultz pitching ace for Oregon met his fourth straight defeat at the hands of the Bakers. While he allowed but three hits his wildness was responsible for the winning score. —CANT EXPLAIN HURTS Alex Buccantone of Nelson was found lying in the road at the Lincoln Central overhead bridge south of the city near the Dutch road last evening about 8:30, apparently unconscious and bleeding freely from a wound on the forehead. A farmer, living south of E. X. discovered the man lying in the road, pulled him to one side and telephoned the police.

Chief Van Bibber and Sheriff Richardson went to the scene and brought Buccantone to the county jail where a physician dressed his wound. He was unable to give any account of the manner in which he sustained the injury and it was the opinion of the officers that he had fallen, striking a stone while walking along the road. He was released from the county jail this morning to return to Nelson.

—FRAUD REVEALED John Dukes, a crippled transient, obtained a commission from Chief Van Bibber to sell lead pencils in the business district yesterday, informing the chief that he was a deaf mute. SECOND TUESDAY

TO BE SIZZLER

Numerous Primaries and Conventions Set for Sept. 11

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The second Tuesday of September—the eleventh—will be a political sizzler. Many opinions will be expressed by party leaders then as to what the Maine election of Monday, Sept. 10, portends as to elections in the 47 other states Nov. 6.

Possibly the Maine results and interpretations thereof will overshadow the actual voting of Sept. 11. On that day primaries in eight states and conventions in two will make nominations for Congress. Particular attention will be devoted to a fight between Senator Huey Long and Mayor Wamsley of New Orleans over control of the New Orleans delegation to the House.

Primaries and conventions on Sept. 11 follow:

—Program for Day Arizona. In a primary Senator Henry P. Ashurst has four opponents for the Democratic nomination, including Sidney Osborn, resigned state chairman. Mrs. Isabella Greenway, Democrat, the state's one representative is opposed by Frank Higleman, farmer, Governor B. B. Moeur, Democrat, has three opponents for renomination. Colorado—Miss Josephine Roche, social worker and coal mine owner, who charges that Colorado has been out of step with the New Deal, is running for the Democratic nomination for Governor against Edwin C. Johnson, the incumbent, who accuses Senator Edward P. Costigan of trying to defeat him with the aid of Federal relief patronage. The state's four representatives, Democrats, are unopposed for renomination.

Connecticut—Republican convention will renominate Senator Frederic C. Walcott and also will choose a candidate for governor, Hugh M. Alcorn and Lieut. Gov. Roy C. Wilcox being rivals.

Delaware—Democratic convention will select an opponent for Senator John G. Townsend, Jr. Republican already renominated by convention. A nomination will be made also for the state's one seat in the House, now held by Wilbur L. Adams, Democrat, who probably will be renominated unless chosen for the Senate.

Louisiana—In New Orleans Senator Huey P. Long and Mayor T. Semmes Wamsley have rival candidates for two of the state's eight seats in the House, the Democratic nominations being equivalent to election. Long had state troops control registration for the primary and got special powers from the legislature.

Michigan—Primary. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican, is unopposed for renomination. The Democratic nomination is sought by Frank A. Peadar, Alva M. Cummins, Claude E. Carney and Ray D. Schneider, Governor William A. Comstock, Democrat, has two opponents. Former Governor A. J. Groesbeck is seeking the Republican nomination with three opponents. For nominations for 17 seats in the House, now held by 10 Democrats and one Republican, with one vacancy, there are 142 candidates.

New Hampshire—The state's two representatives have opposition in a primary, Charles H. Tobey, Republican, being opposed by Edward D. Toland, master of St. Paul's school, and William N. Rogers, Democrat by Amos F. O'Connor. There are two candidates for the Republican nomination for governor and three for the Democratic nomination, the incumbent, John G. Winant, Republican, retiring.

THE ROAD OF LIFE

FOR every pain there is its counterpart.
For every tear a laugh of joy.
For every sleepless night
A night with no alloy.
For every shattered dream.
There is a dream fulfilled.
For every turmoil obaying
There is an eddy stilled.
For every spire of sorrow and wild
There is a lasting castle builded.
Somewhere hearts are breaking,
Somewhere love has flown.
Somewhere cares are making
Once warm hearts to stone.
Somewhere the road is covered
With many a sigh and moan
But who knows how near the angels hovered
To call that road their own!

Regard Veal as Delicacy in France

(By MARY E. DAGUE)
(NEA Service Staff Writer.)

There seems to be a tradition in this country that veal is indigestible. But France regards it as a delicacy suitable for invalids and uses it as we use chicken.

The truth is that the digestibility of veal is determined by the cooking. Scientific experiments have proved that properly cooked veal is as easily digested as any other meat. Remember that veal should be thoroughly cooked, never left rare or under-done. A good rule to keep in mind is that meat from young animals must always be well done while that from matured creatures may be cooked rare if you like.

Even thinly sliced cuts such as steaks and chops of veal should be cooked at least thirty minutes.
Long, slow cooking is imperative for roasts.

You see, the meat lacks fat and is very fine-grained and close textured, so that special attention must be paid to keeping it juicy and flavorful.

Breading Keeps in Juice

A covered roaster, larding, frequent basting or a flour and water dough are satisfactory methods for roasting. Chops and cutlets may be rolled in flour or bread crumbs, browned, covered and cooked very slowly. Pot roasting is also a very splendid method for many veal cuts.

Probably there is no other meat that responds as well to clever seasoning. Its flavor is delicate and must be enhanced rather than covered up. A suspicion of sweet herbs and mild vegetables does much in this direction.

Professional cooks consider veal stock indispensable for use in aspics, in meat and vegetable sauces and in many soups. While chicken and veal stocks are used almost interchangeably, veal stock is much less expensive, and even more delicately flavored.

Veal Fricassee

2 pounds foreleg of veal
4 cups water
1 small onion
1 blade celery
1 small carrot
Bit of bayleaf
1-2 teaspoon peppercorns
2 teaspoons salt
Flour

Peel but do not slice onion.
Scrape carrot and cut in quarters.
Cut celery in half inch pieces and put these vegetables with bayleaf and peppercorns into a square of cheesecloth. The securely and drop into water. Bring to the boiling point and add meat. Cook hard ten minutes. Then reduce heat and simmer until tender, about three hours. Cool in the water.
Remove meat from stock and cut in neat pieces for serving. Remove cheesecloth bag of seasonings from stock. Roll meat in flour and brown quickly in hot fat or butter. Remove meat to hot platter and brown two tablespoons flour in frying pan in which meat was browned, adding more fat if necessary to make two tablespoons.
Stir in stock in which meat was cooked and cook and stir until gravy boils. Pour over meat, garnish with parsley and serve.

Bridge Party Hon- ors Miss Finney

Last evening Miss Helen Finney delightfully entertained with a bridge party in honor of Miss Helen Finney who is soon to become the bride of Robert Harridge of this city. Eight guests were entertained, decorations in pink and white being very pretty, with favors and flowers emphasizing the dainty color combination. Miss Frances Zoeller won the favor for high honors at bridge and Miss Elta Mae Finney won the consolation favor. A tempting two course luncheon was then served, after which those present held a handkerchief shower for the bride to be,
and she received many dainty gifts of this nature with the best wishes of all her friends for happiness to come.

Entertains Church Council at Supper

Rev. Lloyd Warren Walter, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church and his wife, returned last evening from an enjoyable vacation trip to the Wisconsin lakes. And Rev.
Walter has definitely and finally proved that he is a fisherman of parts. For some years he has enjoyed about the sport he has enjoyed in the age-old pastime of fishing, and friends and parishioners alike have listened to his (fish) stories with polite interest.
And afterward they repeat these fish stories to friends with just a wee bit of human interrogation and the arching of a skeptical eyebrow. Well, Rev. Walter has foresighted all doubters, for this evening he will entertain at a 6:30 fish supper at the church the members of the church council.

Shirley Temple Has a Sweet Tooth Which She Fills With Jelly

"Um, isn't it good! And we made it ourselves." Shirley Temple smiles in anticipation as her mother offers her the first of their batch of grape jelly.

HERE'S one movie star who can indulge her sweet tooth. Shirley Temple, who has become the darling of America's heart, loves and eats jam and jelly just as much as the children who play on sidewalks and meadows.

Her mother, Mrs. Gertrude Temple, knows that jam and jelly fill the child's need for sweets in pure, easily digestible form.

When Shirley is not busy on the lot, making pictures with grown up stars like Gary Cooper and Carole Lombard, with whom she appears in "Now and Forever", she can very often be found around the kitchen helping her mother, who is an accomplished jelly maker.

Grape jelly is a favorite in the Temple household and this recipe will give you some of the finest you've ever tasted.

which Mrs. Peterson and daughter were seated, the centerpiece was enhanced with the presence of a

FUTURE LOOMS BRIGHT AGAINST DESPAIR.

Sometime during the next 25 years the American college will enter a new phase in which its enrollment will be vastly increased and its methods of teaching will be revolutionized.

This is the prediction of Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern University.

No one, he believes, will remain out of college simply because he cannot pay tuition; on the other hand, no one will attend simply because he can pay.

Anyone who has the ability to profit by a college education will become a student; and the colleges will have far greater resources than they have now, so that they will be able to give more attention to the individual student than they do now.

All this, says Dr. Scott, will reflect changes in the national life. Leisure will be more abundant, money will be more plentiful, the national culture will be more closely integrated.

As a result, we shall have mass education on a greater scale than anything hitherto dreamed of, and the college will play a larger part in the national life than ever before.

Now this prediction is interesting, not only because it holds up an attractive future to our gaze, but because it is just one more proof that far-sighted men can see a great development and enrichment of national life just ahead of us.

During the last few years we have fallen into a peculiar mental attitude. Somehow we seem to have the notion that our great days are all behind us, that the depression has dissipated and vitiated the boundless energy of America, and that the most we can hope for, hereafter, is to keep our heads just above water.

It is only natural that we should feel that way, in a time of great confusion and trouble. But it is good for us to be reminded that the last few years have not been an end of everything, but have simply been a breathing space between two great epochs in our history.

Now, if ever, is the time for us to be making great plans for the future. The era that is just beginning can be extraordinary rich and fruitful, if we have the courage to dream.

CONFLICTING POWERS.

One of the oddest conflicts within the machinery of the New Deal is coming up for settlement just now. The administration is pondering the overlapping fields presided over by the NRA and the Federal Trade Commission, and it is hinted in Washington that these two bodies may eventually be combined.

The Federal Trade Commission is a body set up to see that industry be kept from making large-scale combinations that might be against public policy. Its theory dates straight back to the old anti-trust days. The NRA, on the other hand, holds that a large degree of industrial combination is both necessary and wise.

Thus, naturally, there has been a good deal of conflict. It is high time that it be straightened out. The government can hardly fight combination with one hand and help it with the other.

ONLY HALF A MILE AWAY!

There is something exceedingly eerie and pleasantly shivery about Dr. William Beebe's descent into the ocean depths in his "bathysphere." By sinking half a mile below the surface in his steel sphere, this scientist has explored a whole new universe. He has seen a region which, certainly, no man ever saw before.

These stories about his trip make excellent reading. Dr. Beebe peers out of his windows and sees a place of everlasting night and everlasting silence. Monstrous forms, oddly illuminated with myriad lights, glide slowly past. The whole scene is one that Poe might have invented.

Here, indeed, is exploring in the grand style. Flying into the stratosphere or hiking to the poles hardly compares with it. Dr. Beebe travels a scant half mile—and sees a new world!

CONSUMER AS PICKET.

It is interesting to note that a New York supreme court judge has upheld the right of the citizen to picket a business house in his capacity as consumer.

A Bronx neighborhood organization felt that prices charged for bread were too high. So they began to picket stores and bakeries, demanding price reductions. The bakers asked a restraining order to make them stop, and the court refused to grant it.

The right to picket is usually associated with labor disputes. Here it enters a new field, and the field is one in which it might prove useful. If a man can picket because he feels that he is underpaid, he can also do it if he feels that he is being overcharged.

What the people of this country really want is prosperity, not a desire for spiritual growth but for physical and material possessions.—James R. Bancroft, president, American Institute of Finance.

The hair brush as a child corrector is a recognized institution in all well-regulated families.—Supreme Court Justice W. F. Bleakley, New York.

It seems to me that official censors are getting rightfully indignant about the wrong things.—Joseph I. Ereen, new morals czar for the movies.

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

With all the pet beasts out of sight, the hunter said: "What caused the fright that made the beasts run to the cave was fear of being shot."

"Look over there and you will see a hunter and I'm sure that he would bang at any animal and kill him on the spot."

"The hunter, coming through the trees, cried out: 'Will someone tell me, please, if there have been wild animals around here recently?'"

"My guide found tracks and traced them here, but now we are stopped, I sadly fear. Just look! The tracks are everywhere. Where can the wild beasts be?"

All of the Tynmites kept still. They thought that they would wait until the hunter did some talking, and of course, that was real smart.

"Come, come, what is this all about? Can't any of you help me out?" exclaimed the gruff old hunter. "I am anxious to depart."

"Well," said the other hunter, "I just saw a lot of beasts go by. They chased these little tots and made them climb up into trees. "I too, climbed way up out of sight, and then, my friend, with all my might, I threw a lot of stones and drove the beasts away with ease."

"What luck I have! Why couldn't I have seen them?" came the man's reply. "In which direction did they go? It's time that I must save!"

"The Tynmites friend just smiled and said: 'Right down that way, sir, straight ahead,' and pointed in the opposite direction to the cave."

"To kill wild beasts that hunter strives, but our good friend has saved their lives. He told a little fib, but in this case it seemed worth while."

(The Tynmites get a thrilling ride in the next story.)

A prize goes to the winner and a good time is had by all, including the on-lookers. The old-fashioned sport has aroused much Interest on the part of boys and girls, and the weekly entry list is growing bigger for each repetition of the event. The above contestants are Rob Wipperman, James Waring, Charles Latourette, Robert Leutchenmann, Jimmy Evans, and Glyn DeWitt, none more than 12 years old.

FUGITIVE FROM FLORIDA PRISON MUST END TERM

Was Ordered Returned to Southern State by Cook Co. Judge

Chicago, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Howard Beck, 29-year-old escaped life term from a Florida convict camp, must pay his debt to society before he can be reunited with the wife he married four months ago. Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan of the Criminal court ruled late yesterday.

Justice Finnegan ordered Beck back to Florida after a governor's warrant has been issued for the fugitive's extradition.

Attorney W. W. O'Brien, representing Beck, said he had examined the papers and had found no loopholes.

Attorney O'Brien told the Judge Mrs. Beck, the mother of two children by a former marriage, would like to talk to her husband and advise him to go back while she wait for him.

Parting in Public
"In view of the reports I have heard from the place where he was confined, I am not inclined to let him talk to her alone," said the justice. "If she wishes she may go into the jury box, in the presence of deputy sheriffs, and talk to him there."

Surrounded by officers, the prisoner and his wife clung to each other in a long embrace under the eyes of courtroom spectators and attaches. Then Beck was turned over to Capt. B. H. Dickens of the Florida prison system.

Beck was sentenced to life imprisonment in Florida in 1928 after the murder of a deputy sheriff during a rum raid. He escaped in 1932 and was rearrested in Miami six months later. His second escape was in July, 1933, after which he made his way to Chicago and obtained work as a taxicab repairman.

Livingstone, the Missionary
David Livingstone, a missionary, was ordained and first went to Africa as a missionary in 1841, at the age of twenty-eight. The trip which cost him his life was made at the request of the Royal Geographical society. He was seeking the source of the Nile. He died in the village of Tshitambo, May 1, 1873. His body was taken to England, where it rests in Westminster abbey.

Attorney O'Brien told the Judge Mrs. Beck, the mother of two children by a former marriage, would like to talk to her husband and advise him to go back while she wait for him.

Parting in Public
"In view of the reports I have heard from the place where he was confined, I am not inclined to let him talk to her alone," said the justice. "If she wishes she may go into the jury box, in the presence of deputy sheriffs, and talk to him there."

Surrounded by officers, the prisoner and his wife clung to each other in a long embrace under the eyes of courtroom spectators and attaches. Then Beck was turned over to Capt. B. H. Dickens of the Florida prison system.

Beck was sentenced to life imprisonment in Florida in 1928 after the murder of a deputy sheriff during a rum raid. He escaped in 1932 and was rearrested in Miami six months later. His second escape was in July, 1933, after which he made his way to Chicago and obtained work as a taxicab repairman.

Livingstone, the Missionary
David Livingstone, a missionary, was ordained and first went to Africa as a missionary in 1841, at the age of twenty-eight. The trip which cost him his life was made at the request of the Royal Geographical society. He was seeking the source of the Nile. He died in the village of Tshitambo, May 1, 1873. His body was taken to England, where it rests in Westminster abbey.

PRESERVING THE TEETH: II

A study of the various experiments which have been made to determine what factors favor the preservation of the teeth leads to the conviction that "an adequate, well-balanced diet, with a reduction in carbohydrates (sugars and starchy foods) and an increase in mineral-containing foods and vitamins is inhibitive to (will retard) dental caries" (decay of the teeth).

On the score of diet, Dr. Milton T. Hanke stresses the value of vitamin C. On the basis of extensive studies, he concludes that "considerably greater amounts of vitamin C are necessary to preserve health and prevent or cure caries than had previously been appreciated."

In his judgment, the average American diet is adequate in calories, but appears to be deficient in certain substances that are requisite to dental health. This dietary deficiency may be the ultimate cause of much of the gingivitis (inflammation of the gums), pyorrhea and dental caries with which we are afflicted.

Gingivitis and dental caries can occur in the majority of a large group of children who are receiving a quart of milk, one and one-half ounces of butter, a pound of vegetables, half a pound of fruit and nearly one egg a day. These foods do not, therefore, contain substances that are specifically antagonistic to gingivitis or dental caries.

The addition of a pint of orange juice and the juice of one lemon to a diet that is nearly adequate in all other respects supplies "something that leads to a disappearance of most of the gingivitis and an arrest of about 50 per cent of the dental caries."

Children display a definite tendency toward the development of carious lesions, which is nil or low in some cases and high in others. The administration of an adequate amount of citrus fruit juice to a diet that is nearly adequate in other respects reduces the intensity of the caries process, but does not completely remove the effect of the inherent tendency in all cases.

The midiron is designed for shots around 180 yards. If the distance is more, a stronger club should be used.

The swing for the midiron is different than that for woods. Because the shaft is shorter, one must stand closer to the ball. This makes the swing more upright, and changes the stance to one slightly more open.

No more than a three-quarter swing is necessary. With this shorter swing, the player should find better control, and should be able to apply force more certainly in hitting the ball.

YANKS REFUSE TO BE COUNTED COMPLETELY OUT

Think They're in the Race As Long as Gomez is in There

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

So long as they have the not-so-forty Vernon Gomez on the job it seems certain that the Yankees won't let themselves be counted out of the American League pennant race until the last possible moment.

On games won and lost, Gomez rates the leading pitcher of both major leagues with 23 triumphs against three losses. His latest achievement was to record victory yesterday with a five-hit pitching performance that carried the Yankees through to an 8 to 2 victory. That put him one up on his nearest major league rival, Dizzy Dean of the Cardinals, who has won 22 games.

It was the ninth victory in a row for Gomez in a streak which has included one, two, three, and four-hit games and a shutout triumph over Detroit's league leaders. The only way in which "Goofy" failed yesterday was that he couldn't make his club gain on the Tigers, who came from behind as usual to pound out a 6 to 1 decision over Cleveland in the only other major league contest.

An Easy Victory

Behind Gomez the Yanks pounded out 12 hits off Monte Weaver and Alex McColl for an easy victory. They got off to a flying start with three runs in the first inning on hits by Frank Crosetti and Lou Gehrig, coupled with two walks and two passed balls by Luke Sewell. The Senator catcher partly atoned for those mistakes when he clouted a homer in the third, but Yanks came back to drive Weaver out with another trio of runs.

Detroit had a harder struggle for six innings, as Monte Pearson gave only four hits and Earl Averill cracked his 32nd homer to put Cleveland ahead in the fourth. But from then on the Tigers began to make it look easy. They bunched three timely blows with a sacrifice intentional pass and an infield out to make the lead at 2-1 in the seventh and added four more tallies, driving Pearson to cover in the eighth. Bill Rogers was the leader, opening the first rally with a single and smashing a homer with one aboard in the second outburst.

The other four American League clubs and the entire National League had an open date following the end of the east-west series.

The St. Louis Browns, opening a long home stay, meet the White Sox at St. Louis today in the first of a four game series. One game will be played tomorrow and a double header Saturday. George Blaeholder will pitch for the fifth place Browns today.

The St. Louis Cardinals open at Chicago today with a series with the second place Cubs. Dizzy Dean is scheduled to do the pitching for the Cardinals, in opposition to Guy Bush, the Cub selection.

SOLDIER FIELD ALL READY FOR CLASSIC GAME

College Stars to Meet Pro Champions of Grid This Eve

Chicago, Aug. 31—(AP)—College football will attempt to take a fall out of the professional game's best—the Chicago Bears—tonight at Soldier Field for the edification of 80,000 or more spectators.

The collegians, or rather, ex-collegians since they are senior members of 1933 college eleven, will be in there with plenty to gain and little to lose. The Bears, champions of the National League in 1932 and 1933, must win handily or be responsible for a shock to the professional game's prestige.

The Bears will meet college football's biggest threat, fortified by experience and weight, and with the lineup which finished last season almost intact. Coach Noble Kizer of Purdue and his assistants, Jimmy Crowley of Fordham and Dick Hanley of Northwestern, and Mal Edwards, Purdue's line coach, have worked hard with a prime pick of the colleges.

To Use N. D. System

Kizer has prepared the college squad with as much of the Notre Dame system as it has been able to absorb. His early choice for field general was Homer Griffith of Southern California. Joe Laws, Iowa's quarterback last year, was definitely named for a halfback job, but the other two positions rested among four stars. Herman Everhardus of Michigan or Beattie Feathers of Tennessee, were in line for the other half back, with "Iron Mike" Mikulak of Oregon and Fred Hecker of Purdue, candidates for fullback.

Red Grange, beginning his ninth full season as a professional gridiron workman, is not a certain starter. Bill Hewitt, former Michigan star, rated as the pro game's premier end, and Bronko Nagurski of Minnesota are to be in the Bear's starting battlefront.

In the event of rain the game will be played tomorrow night.

A Thumbnail History of Cup Won by 'America'

NO. 3. THE THIRD CHALLENGE

New York, Aug. 31—(AP)—The veteran schooner American came out from the curtain of the past to play an unofficial part in the New York Yacht Club's successful defense of the America's Cup against the challenge of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club's Countess of Dufferin in 1876.

Although 23 years had elapsed since the America had lifted the international trophy from England in 1851, the old boat, built by George Steers was still fast enough to outlast the Canadian challenger.

In this contest three races were arranged and the challenger had to meet only one defender—the centre-board schooner Madeline, owned by J. S. Dickerson.

The Countess was of a shallow type, drawing only six and a half feet of water to a beam of 24 feet. She was exceedingly rough in finish and badly canvassed.

The first race was sailed over the N. Y. Y. C. course and was won by Madeline by 10 minutes, 59 seconds corrected time. The second race was 20 miles to windward from Sandy Hook and returned.

The old America, looking and acting like the great boat she was in spite of the years that had outmoded her, participated in this race as a pacer.

While the actual rivalry for the Cup rested between the Countess and Madeline, old America beat the Canadian schooner by 19 minutes and nine seconds and finished a little more than eight minutes behind Madeline, the official winner.

ART SHEFFIELD AMONG CHAMPS SEEKING TITLE

Dixonite One of Former Trap Champions Now Competing

Vandalia, O., Aug. 31—(AP)—America's master marksmen, nearly 700 of them, were burning up nearly $20,000 in ammunition today, seeking a goal that only one can attain—the Grand American Handicap trapshooting championship, a silver tea set and a bit of cash.

Eight former champions were on hand for the premier event in the day target field, seven of them trying to win back their former laurels. One, W. Henderson of Lexington, Ky., will be watching from the sidelines.

Walter Beaver, of Berwyn, Pa., present title holder and one of the ace marksmen of the events leading up to today's grand finale, was competing, hoping to be the first to repeat in the big time event.

Former champions banging away included A. E. Sheffield, Dixon, Ill., 1932; Otto Newlin, Georgetown, Ill., 1927; and Mark Aris, Champaign, Ill., 1923.

Also given a chance at the crown is H. H. Holbrook of Sorento, Ill., the banker who won the preliminary handicap Thursday, over the same route the big event is staged.

CITY SOFTBALL TITLE CONTESTS ARE ARRANGED

First Game Between Browns and Bakers Next Wednesday

A city series of seven games between the Buster Browns, champions of the city softball league, and the Beier Bakers of the Rock River Valley league, was announced today for the purpose of deciding a city championship team.

President Frank Daschbach, who left today on a fishing expedition with Louis Knick, met with the managers of the various clubs of the city league last evening to arrange for the championship series. It was decided to play all of the games at the Airport field, and four of seven games will decide the winner of the series. The first game will be played Wednesday evening of next week, the second on Friday and the third on Sunday. Games will be called at 7:30 and will consist of nine innings. A portion of the proceeds from the series will go towards financing a picnic for the eight clubs of the city league and the Beier team of the Valley league, who have furnished entertainment for the soft ball fans of Dixon and vicinity throughout the summer months.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 31—(AP)—Rainbow entered the home stretch of the final trials to select an America's Cup defender today with her sail locker enriched through the sporting instincts of Frederick Prince, owner of Weetamoe, eliminated from the trials last week.

Prince offered the use of Weetamoe's canvas to both the surviving defense candidates, Rainbow and Yankee of Boston.

ROSS EXPLODES FIRST BOMB IN PUBLICITY GAME

Barney Declares Jim McLarnin Used Rabbit Punches

Ferndale, N. Y., Aug. 31—(AP)—The first bombshell in the forthcoming Barney Ross-Jimmy McLarnin welterweight title fight was hurled today by Champion Barney himself. There was a suspicious odor of publicity about it all but Barney declared he was serious.

The 25-year-old holder of the lightweight and welterweight championships charged that McLarnin stung him several times during their clash last May with rabbit punches and announced he intended to take up the matter with the boxing commission when the fighters meet next Thursday afternoon for weighing-in ceremonies.

"He got me in close several times and brought his right hand down hard on the base of my skull," Ross said while he relaxed in his cottage.

Punch Is Illegal

"He didn't hit me solidly or else he would have paralyzed me. The rabbit punch is illegal and there's no reason why he should be permitted to get away with it."

"Sam (Sam Plan, one of his managers) and I are going to bring it up with the boxing commissioners next week and it is up to them to do the rest."

Barney's squawk, he hastened to explain, was not because he has any fear of the Vancouver bomber. On the contrary, he said, he not only expects to repeat his triumph of last May when he spotted Jimmy five pounds and won the welterweight title, but anticipates knocking him out this time.

Routine Changed

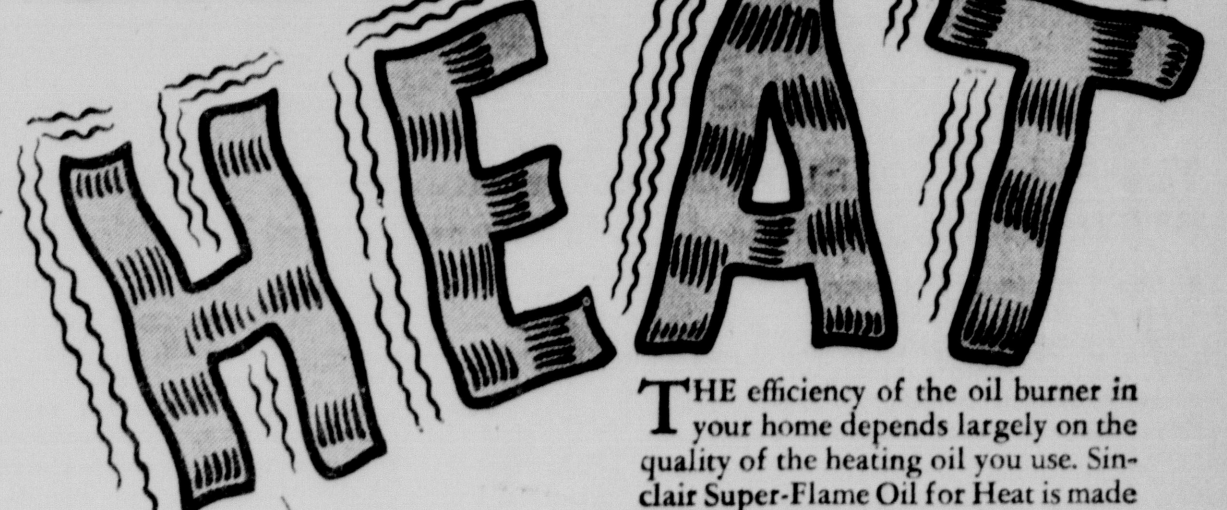

"If I feared Jimmy or thought my victory over him was a fluke, I never would have signed to meet him again so soon," Barney said. Barney's handlers have changed his training routine, cutting his morning road work to three miles and reducing his boxing from six to three rounds a day. He will follow this program tomorrow, Sunday and Monday and then embark for New York where he will remain in solitude, save for a light workout Tuesday, until the night of the fight. He weighed 138 1/2 after yesterday's grind and expects to enter the ring against McLarnin weighing no less than 138.

MANY ATTENDED FAY FREADHOFF FUNERAL RITES

Dixon and Lee County Friends at Service
in Sterling

The funeral of Fay Freadhoff, former Dixon boy, who was killed in an airplane crash in Minnesota Sunday, was held at the Fourth street church in Sterling Wednesday afternoon and was attended by an exceptionally large number of friends of the unfortunate young man and his parents, Sterling's Assistant Fire Chief and Mrs. Ernest Freadhoff. The services at the church were conducted by the pastor, Rev. Wm. C. Godden and at the grave in Riverside cemetery by veterans of the World War, who accorded full military honors to their former comrade.

Among those in attendance at the sad rites from Dixon and Lee county were: Fire Chief William Mitchell, Commissioner John H. Loftus, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Ruggles, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ortgiesen, Mrs. Mayne Stratton, Mr. and Mrs. F. Hasselman, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hintz, Miss Daisy Clifton, Mr. and Mrs. William Wiener and Mrs. Jacob Hill and daughter of Dixon; Mr. and Mrs. F. Wiener and Miss Martha Kecker of Ashton; Mr. and Mrs. George Freadhoff and sons of Lee Center and Mrs. Lena Bittle of Sublette.

May Have Run Out of Gas
Investigation of the fatal crash which cost the life of Pilot Freadhoff and his friend, Henry Pfaff, would tend to show that the plane ran out of gasoline at 11 o'clock Sunday morning. Pilot Freadhoff stopped at the Mason City, Iowa, airport for gasoline, but as the manager of the airport had just fueled his own plane for a trip to Minneapolis, there was but 10 gallons of gas available for Pilot Freadhoff. He informed the airport manager that he believed he had gas enough for two hours' flying and intended to stop at Mankato, Minn., and fill up his tanks. The plane was seen circling a small airport at Good Thunder, but the field was too small for a safe landing and the plane started toward Mankato. The plane fell about three-quarters of a mile southeast of the Mankato flying field.

Both the regular and emergency gasoline tanks were turned on, and it is believed that after the regular tank of gasoline became exhausted it took a fraction of a second too long for the gasoline from the spare tank to flow to the motor and the plane stalled and went out of control. Pilot Freadhoff realized that the plane would crash as the ignition switch was turned off to prevent the plane from catching fire when it grounded.

Uniform Safety Laws Recommended by President

Washington, Aug. 31—(AP)—A recommendation by President Roosevelt for uniform automobile safety laws "with strict and impartial enforcement" has been made public by Secretary Roper.

The president's views were contained in a letter to the commerce secretary in connection with a plan by governors of 44 states to designate September as a "safety month."

Roper, in his statement took cognizance of a recent estimate that 36,000 persons would be killed and 1,000,000 injured during the current year.

Roper said the "definite personal interest of the president" in safety was expressed in Roosevelt's letter.

PRO-WRESTLING TO BE REVIVED IN NEARBY CITY

High Class Bouts to Be Staged in Rockford
Next Month

Rockford, Aug. 31—Professional wrestling in Rockford—soured in its last presentation by a band of pack-knives three years ago—will make a gallant effort at revival this fall. It was learned definitely today with completion of plans for an indoor show at the Coliseum early in September.

Lee Darst of St. Louis, who visited the city nearly a month ago for a preliminary survey, returned this week with another St. Louisan, and former wrestler—Jack Roller—to arrange details for a series of shows involving, as they promise, such rank performers as Jim McMillen, Dick Raines, George Tragos, Abe Coleman, George Zarabias Orville Brown, Cliff Olson, Chris Zarabias, Rudy Dusek, Jim Clinstock, Ernie Dusek and innumerable others who probably will appear here this fall and winter.

Promoters Darst and Roller are well aware of the fact that local sports fans gained a dark-brown taste after swallowing the last pro wrestling diet offered by one M. Charleston who dug up nothing but second-raters and failed in his effort to wish them off as the real thing. Mr. M. Charleston's antics didn't even look like wrestlers and couldn't even grunt the part successfully. Unable to cash in on promises, Charleston left town and with him went such old timers as John Freberg and Roughhouse Peterson of whom nothing much has been heard since. Now come the promoters from the "Show Me" state of Missouri, who contend they will "show Rockford" the best available cauliflower in the industry.

The impression left by Darst and Roller is that neither pretend to offer such championship claimants as Jim London or Stranger Lewis, who, naturally, would care nothing for the purses which could be offered in Rockford. Roller, now a resident of Peoria, where he has staged three successful shows of late, was content to assure us, however, that the same talent accepted in Peoria would be offered here by Darst. They already have secured the Coliseum for three shows a month and soon will announce the card for the inaugural performance—to be staged between Sept. 1 and 10.

Court Is Asked to Decide if Maxie Knocked Out Primo

Washington, Aug. 31—(AP)—The municipal court was asked today to decide whether Max Baer actually knocked out Primo Carnera. It seems Peluso collected from stakeholder Joe Pugliese, on grounds the technical knockout awarded by the judges wasn't a real kayo in the sense of the bet. Now Halpern is suing Pugliese.

CENTENNIAL AT COMPTON DRAWS A LARGE CROWD

Celebration Thursday Is One of Best Ever Held in Village

The centennial anniversary of Brooklyn township, formerly Melugin Grove, celebrated all day yesterday at Compton, brought hundreds of visitors and former residents to that village to visit scenes almost forgotten by some and to renew old acquaintances. The affair was successful far beyond the expectations of its sponsors and every detail of the program was carried out without delay.

Judge Harry Edwards of Dixon was the principal speaker of the day and addressed a large gathering at the city park early in the afternoon. He paid tribute to the pioneers who through their sturdy efforts built the now thriving community. He made a plea for a return of the pioneer spirit to the youth of today, a reverting to the early spirit and ideals of American citizenship as a means of overcoming present national emergencies.

Two Baseball Games
The city park was the scene of activity throughout the day, where during the afternoon old friends gathered to recall the early days of Melugin Grove township. Many were present from a distance to attend the centennial. In the morning at the athletic field west of Compton, Paw Paw emerged the winner over Welland in a baseball game by a score of 3 to 1. In the afternoon the Compton Oilers met Scarborough on the field and if-

CONFUSION ENDED ON BRAN

New Ruling Makes Labels Accurate

To protect the buying public, the United States Food and Drug Administration has advised that every package of cereal labeled "Bran" state on the label exactly what it contains.

Before this ruling, even part-bran products were sometimes mistakenly referred to as "Bran." It was not easy for the purchaser to distinguish between a cereal that was entirely bran, or all bran with flavoring, and another that was mostly wheat.

Kellogg's All-Bran is labeled "ALL-BRAN. Deliciously Flavored with Malt, Sugar and Salt," a statement which describes the product fairly and honestly.

Kellogg's All-Bran has won millions of friends because it corrects most types of common constipation safely and pleasantly. It furnishes generous "bulk"—needed to promote normal elimination.

However, All-Bran is not a "cure-all." Certain types of intestinal disorders should be treated only on a physician's advice.

When you buy a bran cereal, for the relief of constipation, read the wording on the package. The facts are there! Make sure by asking for Kellogg's All-Bran. It furnishes "bulk" in a form for satisfactory results.

At all grocers. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

ferred defeat by a count of 7 to 3. McKenzie hurred for Scarborough and while hit freely was given good support. Knauer started for Compton but left the mound in the sixth inning when five runs had scored and Art Chaon finished.

The success of the celebration was largely due to the efforts of three of the citizens of Compton and vicinity. Henry M. Chaon, George Webber and Mayor John Banks, who were the originators of the plan to hold a celebration which would honor the one-hundredth birthday of the township. They formed other committees and mapped out a program which furnished entertainment for the visitors as well as those residing in the immediate vicinity and it was through their efforts that Compton yesterday entertained probably the largest gathering in the history of the village.

Allen's Address at Sterling Commended by Chicago Tribune

The address delivered by Congressman Leo E. Allen of this district at Lawrence Park last Sunday on the occasion of the dedication of the cannon which was presented to the park by the Sterling post of the American Legion, was the subject of a brief commendatory editorial in the Wednesday issue of The Chicago Tribune. The editorial under the caption "Standard Bearers" reads:

"Representative Leo Allen of the 13th congressional district, a veteran of the World War, is to be congratulated upon the stalwart American of his address at Sterling. It is gratifying to every loyal citizen to find the leading Republican candidate in Illinois asserting the principles of Americanism and setting up true standards for

REPUBLICANS IN STATE CEASE TO "PULL PUNCHES"

Are Now Striking Directly at the National Administration

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 31—(AP)—Illinois Republicans seeking election next November are "drawing no punches" in their attacks on the national administration.

In the primary campaign last spring the party leaders generally, deeming it unwise to take chances on the president's popularity, counseled those seeking nominations to "go easy on Roosevelt" and to center the attacks on the brain trust and the state administrations.

This strategy prevailed after the primary for a time. Then, as the nominees began their drives for November's votes, a new note crept into Republican oratory.

Less was heard about the "brain trust" and the state administration although they continue to occupy much attention and more was heard about the national administration's policies.

The state committee led the way for the orators. In June it announced: "The president, not the brain trust, x x x is responsible for the fact that our historic democracy is being destroyed by the party in power, x x x He is as much responsible for the doings of his cabinet. He is their principal. They are his agents. Their acts are his acts."

Thus encouraged, the G. O. P. orators ceased using the forensic deities they had previously employed to get around the White House. Came the party's state convention August 9. Henry P. Fletcher, national chairman, as the main speaker, in blunt fashion concentrated on President Roosevelt.

He charged that campaign promises had been violated, that the NRA and AAA had failed and that unprecedented expenditures in the name of recovery had failed to produce results. Platform Statement. The convention adopted a platform which while not mentioning the president by name, asserted the Democratic party's national leadership had "deserted every known principle of democracy."

Most of the party's nominees, now devoting full time to the fall campaign, have followed suit. The congressional candidates especially have been concentrating their attacks on the president's policies as the following excerpts from some of their speeches indicate:

"Regimentation, which is the essence of the New Deal, is the greatest legalized racket in the annals of modern history."

"I don't blame Ickes and Tugwell and the others for their social theories which are causing some of us to worry about the safety of the Constitution. One word from the president and they would be out of the picture. They are there at his request and can be dispensed with at his word."

"Today the nation stands chained by fear of new and unheard-of governmental regulations of the activities of its citizens."

"Unless we restore confidence in our dealings with each other and take away the power to rule or ruin us from specially appointed men at the distant place in the nation's capital, this country will continue to flounder and fear."

"There is only one way to stop the radical element in this country today who will turn us over to state Socialism. That is to send

A STREET OF MIXED DESCENT

STREETS in Cuzco, Peru, are like no others in the world. Their lower walls are descended from the beginning of the 12th century, when Cuzco was the capital of the Incas and inhabited entirely by Indians.

Their upper walls of stucco, with wrought iron balconies and old Moorish doorways, are the work of the Spaniards who in the 16th century conquered the Incas, despoiled their gold-adorned temples and palaces and built a new city upon the ruins of the old.

Present-day Cuzco has the architectural characteristics of medieval Spain but a population and culture largely Indian. It rests among some of the most amazing ruins in the world 11,000 feet above sea level at the foot of a deep valley 200 miles

BEACH CLUB GIRL

BEGIN HERE TODAY. SYLVIA RIVERS, richest girl in Larchmont, fashionable New York suburb, dislikes BOOTS RACER. Due to Sylvia's malicious gossip, Boots is asked to resign from the Juniors.

Hurt and reckless, Boots accepts the attentions of RUSS LUND, swimming instructor. He asks her to marry him but Boots wants time to think it over.

When Mrs. Racburn returns from a trip out of town Boots dreads her mother's learning about her withdrawal from the club. Boots goes to New York on a shopping trip and on the train encounters Russ who begs her to marry him next day. She agrees.

Russ goes to spend the night with his family, leaving Boots at a hotel.

DENIS FENWAY, young author, who is interested in Boots, sees the couple together in a hotel lobby.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY. CHAPTER XX. IT was a dream—it was all dream-like. The bare, busy room with its grating window and the business-like man asking questions behind it. The yellow-haired girl in the frankly cheap silk dress, staring with open curiosity. The other giggling couples and one staid, elderly group.

Boots signed her name; they all went away in a taxi. Boots had already sent a telegram to her parents, saying she was to be married. She didn't know—she could not imagine how or why things had come to pass in this way. She hadn't expected to be married in this fashion. What her mother would feel, she did not even dare to think. In the back of her mind, however, was the confused feeling that all old scores were thus being paid off in Larchmont. She would not have to go back, to face the smiles and the patronage of her enemies. She was free. Marriage would set her free. . . .

The dreamlike daze persisted all through the hurried and brief ceremony at a dingy uptown church, whose denomination she did not even trouble to learn. The minister was thin, anxious, harried, and accepted his donation from Russ with an almost pathetic show of gratitude.

Then, suddenly, it was over. The yellow-haired girl whom Russ called Gloria and her husband, Russ's brother, went away, leaving Boots and her bridegroom alone together. She began to tremble. It wasn't a game after all. It was terribly real, terribly earnest. She was this man's wife now, forever and ever. . . .

"FIND me some socks, will you, Hon?" Russ rolled over, stretched, yawned, reaching out a long, muscular arm to embrace her. The girl, in her thin gown, a cheap new negligee thrown over her shoulders, moved away.

"We should have been up hours ago," she said in an undertone, with a glance at the closed door separating the living room of Lou's flat from the box-like entrance hall beyond which came the smell of burning toast. "It's terrible. . . ."

They had been married a week now. They were, presumably "just stopping" at Lou's for a short space before going on to new fields. The whole experience had been a revealing one to the girl who had expected the glamour and romance of open fields and new scenes to gild her young married life. Instead the four walls of Gloria's shabby living room encompassed her. Russ said lazily, when she pressed him, that he was "getting the car fixed up"; and further, he thought she ought to "go up and see the folks and find out if they had any ideas."

AT the bare notion of any such procedure Boots' heart sank. She was outwardly docile and sweet toward her young husband. Indeed, though she might have been disappointed about the background of her new life, his love-making still held in it a breath-taking quality for her. She was a woman grown now, she reminded herself proudly, looking at her flushed cheeks in the mirror. She was beloved. . . . how cheerful of her to mind the fact that Lou used double negatives and that his table manners were not those familiar to polite society! In a few days now, in a week she and Russ would be on the open road. It would all be blue skies and green fields. All this dreariness would be forgotten.

"What you thinking about, Beattie?" She smiled at him. He was only a little boy at heart, really. Sometimes she felt worlds older than he.

"Thinking that I'm starved to death and that I want my breakfast and that you ought to be up at that Bronx garage seeing if they've got the car fixed. . . ."

Russ rolled over, staring out of the window. "Don't aug, sweetness. It's bad for the skin."

"Oh, I wasn't," she protested, horror-stricken at the bare idea. "I only thought. . . ."

"Don't think that!" He got up, silencing her with kisses. This, reflected Boots wearily when he had retired to the bathroom, behind whose door sounded wild splashing and spluttering, this was the way all their arguments ended.

She began carefully to make up the couch in daytime fashion, folding the gray sheets meticulously, piling up the pillows. This floor, she thought, ought to be cleaned today. If she only had a vacuum cleaner. . . . If she had some liquid wax. . . . But she dared not make any such suggestion to Gloria whose housekeeping was of the most casual order.

Her own few belongings she packed away in the imitation leather bag Russ had bought for her. They were pitifully few. A gown, a toothbrush, a pair of red slippers, some handkerchiefs from the dime store, Russ was "a little short just now," he had complained shamefacedly. He was "expecting some money any day." Boots was too young, too inexperienced, to inquire further into their finances.

WHILE Russ was dozing in the tub she went rather shyly out into the kitchen. Gloria was sitting on the window sill, poring over a tabloid. She looked up without interest as the other girl entered.

"Oh, I left some coffee," she said vaguely. "I'm going out in a minute. Over to my girl friend's. We want to see Clark Gable down at the Empire and the show starts at 11."

"Is it that late?" Boots glanced momentarily at the alarm clock on the kitchen dresser. The hands pointed to half-past 10.

Gloria took the paper with her and retired to the box-like bedroom down the hall. In 15 minutes she emerged, her makeup freshly laid on, her yellow sports dress not too clean but still very jaunty.

"Help yourself," she said, be-ladyly hospitable, at the door. "I'll be seeing you."

Boots sighed with relief as the slam of the street door attested to the other's departure. She attacked the kitchen, with its depressing evidence of vanished meals, with an alacrity which would have amazed her mother.

When Russ came whistling into the kitchen 15 minutes later, his cockatoos' crest of leaf-brown hair slick and dripping, he found Boots wiping plates and spoons with a housewife's pride. Fresh coffee percolated on the gas burner. There were four slices of golden toast piled in a saucer.

"I couldn't find any oranges," she told him, peering into the refrigerator.

"Saw, Duchess, where'd you think you are—at the Ritz?" Russ wanted to know, pretending to affix a monocle. "Oranges?"

She laughed, but more in annoyance than amusement. "Don't be silly, Russ. Everybody has oranges."

"You think so, hey? A lot you know!"

He poured himself a brimming cup, tilted the small squat bottle, rimmed and collared with a yellow scruff of hardened cream, and drank. Boots opened her mouth to say something and closed it again. It would be time enough later, when they were by themselves, to teach Russ that men did not behave this way with their wives. . . .

She considered what he had just said. Was it true that the things she had always accepted as part of her everyday life up in Larchmont were really luxuries to the sort of people whose lot she now shared? She began to respect her father more than she ever had before for providing her with the life she had known.

"I'll learn," she said now, quickly, to her husband.

He glanced up quickly at the tone.

"Here, Beautiful, you're going to get your hands all red, doing that dirty work." For the first time he seemed to be aware of her absorption in the task of cleaning Gloria's discouraging kitchen. "Look, don't be a dumb-bell. Let that slop wench clean her own pans."

"You mustn't call her names. We're accepting her hospitality, after all," Boots protested, struggling with a hank of steel wool, attempting to scour a frying pan which steadily resisted her efforts.

"Aw, she's a pain in the neck," Russ blustered, swallowing the last of his coffee and reaching out a hand for more toast. "Lou owes me lots more than this; I've always been a pal."

Boots refused to argue the matter. They had been over this ground before.

"Well, anyway, we shan't be here much longer," she said with pretended cheerfulness. "Shall we, dearest?"

Russ began to whistle. It was a way he had. When you didn't want to answer a question you whistled.

"Little girls shouldn't go worrying about things," he said as she persisted. Then he had his arms around her, his face was bared in the fragrance of her hair.

"Love me, Beautiful?"

"Of course I do!"

But she sighed as she struggled free from his embrace. This wasn't the answer to her problem.

JOHN WUHL. John Wuhl, a resident of the Dixon community was born near Bern, Switzerland 61 years ago and as a young man came to America making him home with an uncle at Dixon. Later, in 1911, he was united in marriage with Mrs. Tina Cook, also of Dixon. After living at Humbolt, South Dakota for several years they moved to a farm near Arlington, So. Dak. This remained the home of the deceased with the exception of two years spent in the town of Arlington. It was also here that Mrs. Wuhl passed away March 9, 1928 after a long illness. Mr. Wuhl continued to live on this place with his step-son, Fred Cook and family until his death. After a serious illness of only several days' duration he passed away at the Voiga Hospital, Friday, August 24, 1934. The funeral services were held Monday, Aug. 27 at the St. John's Lutheran church of which the deceased was a very faithful member. His pastor, Rev. P. A. Hinrichs, conducted the last rites. Interment was made in the Arlington city cemetery. Garden Wall too Low For Governor's Deer. Springfield, Ill., Aug. 31—(AP)—Workmen today were erecting two feet of wire fencing atop a stone wall which surrounds a rock garden in the rear of the executive mansion.

The reason was found to be a little brown colored fawn which an admirer had presented to Governor Horner.

The rock garden, surrounded by the stone wall, was thought to be an ideal place for the pet. But the fawn did not agree with the

DILLINGHAM OF THEATER FAME DIED LAST NIGHT

Broadway Today Mourns
One of Its Leading Producers

(Picture on Page 1)
New York, Aug. 31.—(AP)—Broadway mourned today one of its leading figures—Charles B. Dillingham.

The noted theatrical producer, 66, died last night after being seriously ill since Sunday. He suffered a general breakdown, several weeks ago.

Dillingham, who produced more than 200 shows, was known principally for his musical productions, and among the most spectacular were those he presented at the Hippodrome, in its heyday the biggest theater in the world.

The best of his productions, however, were presented at the Globe theater which he built in 1910. There were times, however, when he had as many as a half dozen shows on Broadway at the same time.

Last of Triumvirate
Dillingham was the last of a triumvirate associated in the theatrical business for many years. The other two were A. L. Erlanger and Florenz Ziegfeld.

He was born in Hartford, Conn., on May 30, 1868, the son of a clergyman. At an early age he came to work for a Hartford newspaper and later worked in Washington, Chicago and New York before entering the theatrical business as an associate of the late Charles Frohman.

Among Dillingham's best known shows are the Fred Stone revues including "Chin Chin," "Sleeping Stones," "Victor Herbert," "The Red Mill" and "Mile. Modiste," and "Lady of the Slipper," "The Candy Shop," "The Slim Princess," "Dolly Dollars," "A Madcap Princess," "Sunny," with Marilyn Miller, and the Frederick Lonsdale comedies, "The High Road," "The Last of Mrs. Cheyne," and "Aren't We All?"

His last production was "New Faces," a last season revue which was made up of virtually unknown talent.

Dillingham was married twice. His first wife, Jennie Yeomans, an actress, died in 1906. He was divorced from his second wife, Eileen Kearney of San Francisco, also of the stage. She is now living in Paris. The only other close survivor is a sister, Mrs. Loomis Newton of Hartford.

Possessed Gay Humor
Dillingham had about him something of the gay humor that marked the many high-spirited comedies he gave to the American public. When he went to New York as a young newspaperman, those who did not know that he hailed from Hartford, were in the habit of referring to him as a "breezy westerner."

After becoming a producer in 1898, Dillingham managed 50 stars. His prominence in the theatrical world lasted more than a quarter of a century. At the height of his career he was owner of the Globe Theater and partner of Erlanger in 20 other playhouses in various cities.

An engaging personality, a gift for the theater and a smooth efficient executive ability were factors in Dillingham's success. He made many friends, the closest of whom was Bruce Edwards, business manager of the Dillingham interests, who died in January, 1927. When he was first established on Broadway the producer sent for Edwards, whom he had known from boyhood and who had started business life with him in the city room of the Hartford paper.

Other associates in his younger days as a journalist were George Ade, Finley Peter Dunne and Frank A. Vanderlip. They served with him in Chicago and later recalled him as a reporter—and a good one.

HOBOS FIND FEDERAL EDEN; FREE BOARD, LITTLE WORK

Typical of hobo "Edens" now established in several sections of the country under federal relief direction is the one shown above, a 1934 model "jungle" at Fairfield, O., its neat street lined with tents. At left is a new arrival, just after he had received his bed roll. Instead of a tin can camp along a railroad track, the hobos who tarry here find all the comforts of a home—electric lights, shower baths, barber shop. Cigarettes are free and so is clothing. The only drawback is that residents must work four six-hour days a week in return for food, lodging and incidentals, but the labor is light. When the itinerants are ready to move on, they are transported in government trucks to their next port of call.

GOOD THOUGHTS

Not for one single day
Can I discern the way.
But this I know
Who gives the day will show the way.
So I securely go.
—John Oxenham

Every grace that God has given to us in the past, every touch of His life that has quickened us, every assistance of His Spirit that has supported us and given us a victory over evil, is a proof and evidence of His power.

—Henry Van Dyke

O thou who through the test of years hast known Unnumbered proofs of Love's protecting power,
Rejoice in this seeming darkest hour.

God now no less is caring for His own.
—Edith L. Perkins

In the midst of conditions which have brought about world-wide failure and the crumbling of material sources of prosperity, thinking men and women are asking, "What is wrong?" Prevailing conditions are compelling many to turn to God for help. Appreciation of spiritual values is now being more generally voiced. Turning to the divine source for guidance and protection, we can calmly face the depressing conditions of our day, and prove that they have no power to frighten or harm, because they do not emanate from and are unknown to our heavenly Father.

Men are beginning to realize that God directs the paths of those who trust Him, and leads them safely through every ordeal.
—The Christian Science Monitor

Without the assistance of the Divine Being, I cannot succeed. With that assistance, I cannot fail.
—Abraham Lincoln

Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths.

Proves Realism of Fair Art

The title of picture which is in the World's Fair exhibit in the Chicago Art Institute is, "Women Ironing." It is by Edgar Degas. One of the women has paused from work to relieve her drowsiness with a yawn. It is a real stretch! Visitors have stood for a moment looking at this picture and they unconsciously raise their hand to their faces to suppress a real yawn. Very few succeed in doing so, as will be seen by this photograph, where the camera caught Mrs. Adele Lawson, Chicago, overcome by the suggestive force of drowsiness in the Degas picture.
